Whoever contributes to clear thinking and wise direction at this critical period in the history of our country renders signal service to his fellow-citizens. Far-flung and devastating war has ensued in tremendous and universal upheaval. Dynasties are crashed down; systems of government are daily challenged, and the many are questioning the destinies of the human race. Having been acquainted since boyhood with the writer of this book, I know him to be a bold and independent thinker, endowed with a considerable gift of literary expression. While preserving a close friendship, we have differed in thought and action, which is but to say that we possess a mutual regard for individuality. Over and beyond this we unite in love of our country, in faith in our race, in hatred of wrong and injustice, and in desire that the world may be better when we quit than it was when we arrived. Early in life Mr. Crotch evinced interest in social welfare by studying housing conditions in Norwich, our native city, and the rural districts of Norfolk. He embodied the results of his investigations in a book which, under the title of The Cottage Homes of England, did much to awaken the public conscience and to inspire betterment. Among Dickensians he is recognized to have imbibed very freely of the humanitarianism, the spirit and purpose of Charles Dickens. This marks him as hating cant and humbug, as being a true friend of...
